FELIX DIAZ IS IN SAN ANTONIO

Authorities Keep a Close Watch on Him and Associates to Nip Any Revolutionary Movement.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 27.—Federal officials are keeping a close watch on the movements of a number of prominent Mexicans who are sojourning here, in order to nip in the bud any plans that may be hatched for the starting of another Mexican revolution. Twice has this city been the scene of activity in the fostering of Mexican revolutions, and the United States authorities are determined to prevent another revolution, if possible.

It was here that the late President Francisco I. Madero set on foot the revolution which resulted in the overthrow of the Diaz government, and later General Bernardo Reyes came here to start a revolt against Madero, which resulted in Reyes' death.

The reported presence here of Felix Diaz and other Huertistas has alarmed the Federal officials here and they are prepared to act promptly in enforcing the neutrality laws at the first inkling that steps toward organization are being taken.

While it is not the purpose of the United States to deny these eminent personages of the sister Republic the privilege of coming here in quest of a haven of rest, the Federal authorities have made their meaning clear that they would prefer not to see such a number of them here at one and the same time. Besides Felix Diaz, incognito, there are at present in the city Manuel Bolanos Bacho, former Governor of the State of Oaxaca; Miguel Carbenas, Governor of Chihuahua under Porfirio Diaz; Lic. Jose M. Lanza, formerly Secretary of the Interior in the Huerta cabinet; Colonel V. Cabrero and others who are known to be sympathizers of the Huerta cause.

HOW TO HANDLE
THE ARMY WORM

State Entomologist Newell Gives Methods and Kinds of Poisoning.

To The Eagle:

College Station, Tex., Aug. 27.—Despite warnings and directions for fighting the cotton leaf worm, or "army worm," earlier in the season, damage by this insect is on the increase and the present situation in most of the State is assuming a serious aspect.

Thousands of farmers do not know how to combat this pest, simple though the remedy is. I am enclosing an article on the subject, which is being sent to a number of the agricultural papers of the State, and we believe that the present plight of the cotton farmers would amply justify your waving the customary rule of publishing only exclusive articles and give the attached publicity through your columns at the earliest possible date.

WILMON NEWELL,
State Entomologist.

THE COTTON LEAF
WORM, OR "ARMY WORM"

The cotton leaf worm, otherwise known as the "army worm," "careless worm," "cotton caterpillar," and other names, has made its appearance in parts of Texas. This is the same insect that spread over the entire cotton belt last summer, causing consternation among the cotton planters and doing no inconsiderable amount of damage. The history of this pest for the past seventy-five years has been that it is destructive for a few seasons in succession and then becomes of little importance for from fifteen to twenty years before another outbreak. The appearance of the pest after last year's outbreak is therefore unexpected.

The worm or larva is the young stage of a small moth and the rate of development is quite rapid, a generation of the insects being produced about every three or four weeks. The adult moths of each generation fly or migrate northward and deposit eggs in cotton fields on their way, thus spreading the pest rapidly.

Cotton planters everywhere should be on the lookout for this insect and be prepared to fight it just as soon as the first small worms appear in the cotton fields.

Fortunately this insect is very easy to control by means of poisons. In former years Paris green was quite generally used, but this has been largely superseded by a better poison known as powdered arsenate of lead, now generally on the market and costing about the same price as Paris green. Paris green has the disadvantage of burning the cotton and of blistering the men and work animals used, to say nothing of its dangerous nature. Many experiments in recent years have also proven that Paris green will cut down the yield of cotton, no matter how small a quantity is applied, on account of the fact that it contains water-soluble arsenic. The newer poison, powdered arsenate of lead, contains very little soluble arsenic, and will not reduce the yield of cotton, although fully as effective as Paris green in destroying the worms. It will not blister work animals and is safer to use.

The method of applying it is to dust it onto the cotton plants dry, from cloth sacks suspended from a pole carried on horseback between the rows. It need not be diluted with any other substance and from two to four pounds per acre are required, according to the size of the cotton.

When the powdered arsenate of lead is not available, and the worms are bad, Paris green may be used instead. In such case from three-fourths to one and one-fourth pounds of the Paris green should be used per acre, preferably diluted with four to six times its own bulk of flour or very fine air-slaked lime. However, Paris green should be used only as a last resort, as it will reduce the yield in every case.

The application of any liquid spray to cotton is extremely impractical, involving the purchase of expensive spraying machinery and requiring a big outlay for labor in handling the hundreds of tons of water necessary to spray a cotton field. Particularly in such spraying ridiculous when the planter can much more easily and cheaply destroy the worms with a dusting of dry poison.

Such poisons as London purple and white arsenic should never be used on cotton, as they burn the foliage severely. Caustic soda also should not be used on cotton, either alone or with other things.

In rank cotton, on alluvial lands, where the bolls are beginning to decay, it is well to let the worms partially strip the foliage so as to admit the sunlight, before poisoning them.

is bad the worms should be allowed unrestricted activity after October 1, as by destroying the young squares they cut off the weevil's food supply and markedly decrease the number of weevils present to attack the following crop.

Planters throughout the State should waste no time in preparing for the cotton worm, and should lay in a sufficient supply of the powdered arsenate of lead.

The undersigned will be glad to furnish, on request, a list of Texas dealers handling the powdered arsenate of lead.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR THE LATE POPE PIUS

St. Joseph's and St. Anthony's congregations met this morning at St. Joseph's Church to assist at the solemn memorial service held in honor of the late beloved Pope Pius X. The church, the altar and the catafalque were draped in the Papal colors of white and gold entwined with crepe. At the church entrance was a picture of the late Pope and around it the inscription, "In Memoriam." Rev. Dr. Simone was celebrant, Father M. Domrowski of Anderson, deacon, and Father P. Listora of this city, subdeacon. Rev. J. B. Gleisner was master of ceremonies, while Rev. George Apel of Plantersville acted as chanter. The choir of St. Joseph's Church also took part in the singing. During the hour of service the Italians of this city closed their stores out of respect for the illustrious dead Pope.

PASSING ON OF DESTITUATES.

(By Associated Press.) San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 27.—City and charitable organization officers are aroused over several recent cases of the "passing on" of destitute invalids, which has finally landed them in San Antonio without means, friends or relatives. The latest case has been a family of three, a consumptive husband, a frail wife and a young child, who are reported to have reached San Antonio after being "passed on" by several cities in Arizona, California and Colorado. The family was given aid here, but authorities are wondering if some steps cannot be taken to force other cities to care for their own unfortunates.

A COTTON CONSULTATION.

(By Associated Press.) Dallas, Tex., Aug. 27.—Farmers, merchants and bankers of every cotton growing State will meet in New Orleans today to devise systematic plans for marketing the 1914 cotton crop. The meeting was called by Harvie Jordan, president of the Southern Cotton Association, and representative delegates have been named by associations of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas among others. Robert Gilham of Ardmore is one of the Oklahoma delegates.
